The 365 Party will be held at the museum's temporary campus in the Design District's landmark Moore Building (4040 NE Second Ave.), and includes a DJ set by Brooklyn-based synth-pop duo Holy Ghost!, open bar and hors d'oeuvres by Michael's Genuine Kitchen. Gordon will kick off the weekend on Nov. 20 with a discussion of her book, "Girl in a Band," with Amanda Keeley, founder of EXILE Books. The 7 p.m. talk, preceded by a 6 p.m. reception, will be at the de la Cruz Collection (23 NE 41st St., Miami). Admission is free with RSVP at DeLaCruzCollection.org.

The 365 Party, which supports ICA's "commitment to providing free access to world-class contemporary art," also honors the cultural work of Rosa and Carlos de la Cruz, Martin Z. Margulies, and Jack Soffer and Craig Robbins.

The museum has plans to build a 37,000-square-foot permanent home, designed by the Spanish firm Aranguren & Gallegos Arquitectos, on property straddling the Design District and Buena Vista East. The design and construction of the new museum are being funded by a capital gift from Irma and Norman Braman.
